Call for Papers

Vol. VII, Issue 2 (June 2022)

Postcolonial Interventions invites scholarly articles for an OPEN ISSUE to be published in June 2022. While the world continues to struggle with the COVID-19 pandemic, amid growing worries about new variants and potential new waves, different forms of precarity, conflicts and resistance movements continue to mark the socio-political landscape, especially in relation to climate change, ecological crises and the nexus between states and corporate sectors associated with fossil fuel. We look forward to articles that would rigorously investigate such issues and much more by analysing diverse cultural representations across the world.
