

NOTE ON CONTRIBUTORS (in order of appearance)

Nouzha Baba: She is completing her PhD at LUCAS: Leiden University Center for the Arts in Society. In her thesis Culturalism and Its Discontents: Comparative Studies in Rhetoric, Theory and Literature, she undertakes an interdisciplinary comparative research about contemporary European socio-political rhetoric, cultural theory and literature of Moroccan migration. Her areas of research include comparative literature and cultural analysis, Post-9/11 literature, politics and ethics, postcolonialism, post-modernism and globalism, identity, memory and gender studies. During her doctorate studies, Baba has participated in numerous international conferences and summer/winter schools and has published articles in edited books and peer-reviewed journals.

Sunayan Mukherjee and Sayantani Chakraborti: Sunayan Mukherjee is working as an Assistant Professor in the Department of English at Government General Degree College Chapra, under Kalyani University. Email id- mukherjeesunayan17@gmail.com

Syantani Chakraborti is working as an Assistant Professor in the Department of English at Sambhu Nath College, Labpur under the University of Burdwan. Email- chakrabortisayantani@gmail.com

Subhasish Guha: The author is, at present a State Aided College Teacher in the Department of English, Pritilata Waddedar Mahavidyalaya, Nadia, West Bengal. He completed his post graduation in English from the University of Kalyani. His areas of interest include Eighteenth century English literature, Victorian literature and Absurd drama.

Arju Khatun: She is a PhD research scholar at Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, Calcutta. She is working on Bengali Muslims and colonial Bengal for her PhD. Her research interests include religion, Islam, secularism, and Bengali Muslims of Colonial Bengal and Postcolonial West Bengal.

Antonio Carlos Wolkmer (UNILASALLE and UNESCO, Brazil) He is PhD in Law (UFSC, Brazil). Master in Political Science (UFRGS, Brazil). Retired Professor at the Graduate Law Program (UFSC, Brazil). Permanent Professor in the Graduate Program in Law and Society (UNILASALE-RS, Brazil). Coordinator and Professor of the Master in Human Rights and Society (UNESC, Brazil). Ad Hoc Consultant for CAPES and CNPq (Brazil).

Lidia Patricia Castillo Amaya (Sanctioning Tribunal of the Consumer Protection Agency, El Salvador) Member (Sanctioning Tribunal of the Consumer Protection Agency, El Salvador). LLM Candidate (Peking University, China). Associate Researcher (Centro di Ricerca Euro Americano sulle Politiche Costituzionali, University of Salento and Centro di Studi Sull'America Latina, University of Bologna; Italy). Former Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Comparative Constitutional Law (UFSC, Brazil). PhD in Public Law (Aldo Moro University of Bari, Italy).

Gvantsa Gasviani: Gvantsa is a third year PhD Student and a Teaching Assistant at the department of Global and International Studies, at the University of California, Irvine (UCI). Her scholarly interests include postcolonial & postsocialist studies, gender and sexuality studies, gender and conflict studies. Her latest article “Inner Martyrdom: Deconstructing the Sacrificial Female Subject in post-Soviet Georgia” was published in the 2022 Spring issue of The Journal of Feminist Scholarship.

Md. Mursed Alam: Dr. Alam is Assistant Professor in the Department of English , Gour College, University of Gour Banga, India. He is also the Coordinator of Ambedkar Centre for Social and Cultural Studies, Gour College. He won a Charles Wallace Fellowship in 2018 and is also the Managing Editor of Kairos: A Journal of Critical Symposium.